The Truth about "The Protocols of Zion" - Herman Bernstein - 1935
Examines the origins of the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion". Its main source was Maurice Joly's satire "Dialogues in Hell between Machiavel and Montesquieu" (1864). Joly's text was used by the antisemitic German writer Hermann Goedsche who wrote the novel "To Sedan" as part of the "Biarritz" series in 1868. Part of the novel, rewritten by Goedsche as "The Rabbi's Speech" and published in Russian in 1872 under the title "The Jewish Cemetery in Prague and the Council of Representatives of the Twelve Tribes of Israel", contains a speech allegedly delivered before "elders of Israel" in Prague. The "Protocols" was concocted in France and published in Russia in order to convince the Tsar that the Jews were the source of revolutionary unrest in Russia and to dissuade him from introducing a constitution. Sergei Nilus and Butmi were the first publishers of the "Protocols", which gained worldwide circulation before it was exposed as a forgery in the 1920s. Pp. 73-397 contain the English text of Joly's "Dialogues" and of the "Protocols", Goedsche's "Jewish Cemetery" and "Rabbi's Speech", Nilus' epilogue to the "Protocols", a 1921 London "Times" exposé, and several pages of parallel texts of the "Dialogue" and the "Protocols".

The Truth about "The Protocols of Zion" - Philip Perceval Graves - 1921
Comprises four articles by Graves (half-brother of Robert Graves) published on 16, 17, and 18 August 1921. Contends that "The Protocols" is a plagiarism of Maurice Joly's "Dialogue aux enfers entre Machiavel et Montesquieu" (1864). States that the writer of "The Protocols" was probably "obliged to paraphrase the original at short notice", and that it was first used in 1901 to undermine the influence of a French hypnotist and thought-reader over the Tsar. It was published by Sergei Nilus in 1905 to further the cause of Russian conservatives.

In 1920, with concerns about the increase in Jewish political influence growing, Anglo-Jewish journalist and writer Lucien Wolf published a series of three articles in the British press arguing against the myth of the Jewish menace in world affairs as it was being portrayed in newspapers such as The Morning Post or by intellectuals like G. K. Chesterton and Hilaire Belloc. Wolf also took great pains to debunk the infamous Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, which had been published for the first time in English that year, and accusations that Jews were behind the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia three years earlier. The three articles were revised and updated by Wolf and published in book form in 1921. In this new edition, Simon Harris places the text in its historical context and discusses the points raised by Wolf. As the publication of the English translation of the Protocols approaches its centenary, the underlying themes of Wolf’s essays are as relevant today as they were a century ago.

The Myth of the Jewish Menace In World Affairs: Or the Truth About the Forged Protocols of the Elders of Zion - Lucien Wolf - 2019-01-24

The Protocols of the wise men of Zion, most probably written by Serjii Nilus, was "an antisemitic hoax purporting to describe a Jewish plan for global domination", first published in Russian in 1905, and widely republished in other languages in the early 20th century. In spite of its already being exposed as a hoax, Hitler and the Nazis publicized the text as if it were true. This volume is the "dramatic exposé", written as "a series of articles in The Times by its Constantinople reporter, Philip Graves, who discovered the plagiarism from the work of Maurice Joly", i.e. the "Dialogue aux enfers entre Machiavel et Montesquieu", an 1864 political satire. A further source is "a chapter from Biarritz, an 1868 novel by the antisemitic German novelist Hermann Goedsche, which had been translated into Russian in 1872." --Online search 21/06/2013, Library of Congress catalog, The Protocols of the elders of Zion, Wikipedia.

The Truth about the Forged Protocols of - Lucien Wolf - 2016-05-12

The Protocols of the Elders of Zion or The Protocols of the Meetings of the Learned Elders of Zion is an antisemitic fabricated text purporting to describe a Jewish plan for global domination. The forgery was first published in Russia in 1903, translated into multiple languages, and disseminated internationally in the early part of the 20th century. According to the claims made by some of its publishers, the Protocols are the minutes of a late 19th-century meeting where Jewish leaders discussed their goal of global Jewish hegemony by subverting the morals of Gentiles, and by controlling the press and the world's economies. Henry Ford funded printing of 500,000 copies that were distributed throughout the US in the 1920s. Adolf Hitler was a major proponent. It was studied, as if factual, in German classrooms after the Nazis came to power in 1933, despite having been exposed as fraudulent by The Times of London in 1921. It is still widely available today in numerous languages, in print and on the Internet, and continues to be presented by some proponents as a genuine document.

Protocols, Truth and Convention - Thomas Oberdan - 1993
The continuing philosophical interest in the famous 'Protocol Sentence Debate' in the Vienna Circle of Logical Positivists is, to a large measure, due to the focus on the epistemological issues in the dispute, and the neglect of differences among the leading players in their philosophical views of logic and language. In Protocols, Truth and Convention, the current understanding of the debate is advanced by developing the contemporaneous views of logic and language held by the principal disputants. Rudolf Carnap and Moritz Schlick. It is argued - largely on the basis of unpublished manuscripts and correspondence - that, despite apparent differences in their respective conceptions of language, there are nonetheless striking similarities, particularly with respect to the conventionality of language. Nonetheless, one key issue - concerning the syntacticism inherent in Carnap's early Thirties' philosophy - separates the two viewpoints in the clash over protocols. Finally, it is argued that Carnap's syntacticism is untenable, a conclusion that Carnap himself finally reached in the closing exchanges of the protocol sentence controversy.

The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, first published in Russia around 1905, claimed to be the captured secret protocols from the first Zionist Congress in Basel in 1897 describing a plan by the Jewish people to achieve global domination. While the document has been proven to be fake, much of it plagiarized from satirical anti-Semitic texts, it had a major impact throughout Europe during the first half of the 20th century, particularly in Germany. After World War II, the text was further denounced. Anyone who referred to it as a genuine document was seen as an ignorant hate-monger. Yet there is abundant evidence that The Protocols is resurfacig in many places. The Paranoid Apocalypse re-examines the text’s popularity, investigating why it has persisted, as well as larger questions about the success of conspiracy theories even in the face of claims that they are blatantly counterfactual and irrational. It considers the medieval pre-history of The Protocols, the conditions of its success in the era of early twentieth-century secular modernity, and its post-Holocaust avatars, from the Muslim world to Walmart and Left-wing anti-American radicalism. Contributors argue that the key to The Protocols’ longevity is an apocalyptic paranoia that lays the groundwork not only for the myth’s popularity, but for its implementation as a vehicle for genocide and other brutal acts.

In its portrayal of Judaism as a worldwide conspiracy dedicated to the destruction of Christian civilization, the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion remains one of the most infamous documents ever written.
